MASSACRE TALKED OF IF ALLIES USE FORCE IN GREECE

Royalist Officers Threaten Openly; Reuter's Man Gets Warning

TAKE PRECAUTIONS

Intimidation of Venizelos Partisans Puts Ent nte Powers on Guard

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Athens, November 27.—The Greek military extremists are intimidating the Venizelists, but the Allies are taking all precautions.

A Royalist friend has warned Reuter's correspondent that he had better remove to some unknown address till after December 1. Apparently he figures in the Royalists' list of undesirables. He does not seriously believe that there will be trouble, but Royalist officers openly talk of a massacre if the Allies have recourse to force.

London, November 27.—In the House of Commons, today, replying to Mr. Ellis Griffith and others, who urged that insufficient support is being given to M. Venizelos and criticising British policy in respect to Greece, Lord Robert Cecil, Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dwelt on the necessity to study the views of all the Allies in framing Britain's policy.

He declared that the Alliance, up to the present, has been carried on with unprecedented harmony and an amazing absence of friction. He denied that Britain was bolstering up King Constantine for private or personal reasons and declared that they would never abandon M. Venizelos.

Abandon Council of Elders Owing to Opposition Raised To Plan in Many Quarters

Government Withdraws Bill; Wu Ting-fang Arrives In Tientsin; Parties Keen for Kwangtung Control

Reuter's Pacific Service to The China Press

Peking, November 28.—Owing to opposition in various quarters, it is said that the Government has decided to withdraw the Bill organising the Council of Elders.

Dr. Wu Ting-fang arrived at Tientsin yesterday and is expected in Peking today. It is possible, however, that he may stay a few days in Tientsin.

Despite the financial stringency, the Government has been obliged to grant the request of the Tuchun of Shantung that he be allowed to retain the promised remittances for the sixth and seventh years, in order to enable the repayment of debts and loans incurred through the disbandment of revolutionary troops.

The resignation of Chu Ching-lan, the Governor of Kwangtung, has been brought up in Parliament. Various parties are doing their utmost to secure the appointment of their own nominees and several recommendations have been submitted to the President.

A number of moderate Cantonese were received in audience by the President, yesterday and they strongly urged the retention of Chu Ching-lan, in order to prevent political strife.

Chinese newspapers report that General Yuin Chang-hung, formerly Tutuh of Szechuen and who was recently released from prison, was despatched by the President to Szechuen, to effect a settlement of the disputes of the various factions. General Yuin left Peking on the 20th instant, but, on arriving at Hankow, the Government, through the Tuchun of Hupeh, ordered him to return to Peking, because he left without giving formal notice.

Ex-Taoyin Chow is Fined In Smuggled Opium Case

The Chinese papers report that the ex-Intendant, Chow Ching-piao, was sentenced by the Chinese Court to eight months penal servitude for his part in the Yunnan opium scandal and also to be deprived of any official post for two years. On the representation of his counsel, however, the alternative of a fine was allowed on account of defendant's age.

New Cardinals Prove Neutrality of Pope

Says Rome Message; Appointments to France Not Sign Of Special Favor

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

Berlin, November 25.—The French press has repeatedly pointed out that the appointment of three French cardinals must be considered as a proof of special sympathy for France. The Rome correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung writes, on November 21: "I hear from the best source, this appointment is a proof of the Holy Father's strictest neutrality. These three French cardinals have been appointed by Benedict XV because three French sees were vacant. There was no German, Austrian or Hungarian see vacant. Had the Pope acted otherwise, the number of French cardinals would have been reduced."

The dead were removed by the British and their guns stacked in the manner shown in the picture, later to be re-issued to new regiments or used to re-equip veterans.

MISS ACKERMANN TELLS OF CHINA'S MODEL JAIL

Peking Penitentiary Causes Sensation Abroad; Says No Country Biggest Sinner

Miss Ackermann lectured to a fairly large attendance at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. last night on "Prison Reform." She spoke on the prison conditions throughout the world and pointed out first of all that in the olden days the public mind had the same thought about criminal prisoners as it had until today, namely, that the prisoner must be punished. Now, however, people were beginning to realise that the criminal must be the ward of the state and be given a chance to reform.

Miss Ackermann proceeded to describe the condition under which criminals lived in different parts of the world and pointed out the fallacy of the system in that so large a percentage of the men who came under the term of the law were "repeaters."

This percentage, she said, was about 67 taking in the whole world and "repeaters" went back to jail from one to half a dozen times. This, she submitted, was conclusive evidence that we are not dealing properly with the criminal. Therefore, prison reforms had been instituted and Miss Ackermann dealt with some of these. It did not seem to be generally known, she said, that there was a model prison just outside Peking and the report of this fact has caused quite a sensation in other countries. Western countries also were giving the criminal a chance to reform instead of debasing him and robbing him of his self-respect.

Miss Ackermann said she had visited the Municipal and the Chinese jails in Shanghai and found them run on Western lines with, of course, variations to meet the climatic conditions. As regarded the system of the punishment of the criminal, she picked out no country as the biggest sinner for the trouble was universal. However there was a new spirit in the mind of the people and the general trend of public thought now was to restore the criminal to society, when possible.

Sanguinary Scenes In Smuggling Riot On Belgian Border

Customs Officers Foil Attempt To Run 'Food for Belgium' Into Germany

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

Amsterdam, November 27.—In consequence of the frequent smuggling of "food for Belgium" into Germany, some Belgian Customs officers and civilians searched trains on the frontier and confiscated cart-loads of pigs and bacon. Germans on the other side of the entanglements stoned the Belgians until the German sentries intervened. The smuggler was killed and many Belgians wounded.

NEW EMPEROR FOLLOWS GERMAN POLISH POLICY

Austria Will Establish Kingdom of Southern Slavs, Under Magyar Rule

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, November 27.—The Times understands that Emperor Charles of Austria will shortly be crowned, at Buda-Pest, as King of Hungary and of the new Kingdom of Croatia, Slavonia, and Dalmatia, which will be under the control of the Magyars, obviously aiming at the forcible conscription of the Southern Slavs, like in Poland.

THRILL FOR DRIFTER

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, November 27.—The experience of the drifter in the Ramsgate raid is very thrilling reading. According to correspondents, the drifter saw a German destroyer loom up in the darkness, not 200 yards away. The drifter was about to hail it, when a shot whizzed overhead.

The little boat was no match for a destroyer and her only chance was to turn and make for home. This she did, followed by a succession of six shots, all directed too high. The light on her mizzen afforded the target at which the German fire was aimed.

One of the crew of the drifter, with splendid heroism, seized a piece of sacking, with the intention of climbing the mast and covering the lamp. He was on the way to carry out this intention, when another shot carried the mizzen away entirely, stove in the ship's boat and tore a hole in the roof of the cook-house, finally exploding over the sea.

When the light disappeared, the enemy evidently thought they had sunk the vessel and the drifter was not further molested and returned to port, showing little sign of her adventure.

SUBMARINES' ACTIVITY ROUSES NAVAL BOARD

Asquith Avers All Possible Is Being Done to Meet Renewed U-Boat War

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, November 27.—In the House of Commons, today, in reply to a question, Mr. Asquith assured the House that the renewed outbreak of submarine activity is engaging the unremitting attention of the authorities and all possible steps are being taken to deal with it.

The Admiralty says that the following incident is interesting, as showing what occurs when the Germans depart from their ordinary practice of sinking all ships encountered.

On the 13th, a submarine placed a prize-crew on board the Norwegian steamship Older (2,202 tons), which was on a voyage from Newport to Gibraltar and proceeded with its usual piracy of other ships. The s.s. Older subsequently departed for Germany, but was re-captured by a British warship, despite attempts to blow her up and brought into a British port, the prize-crew being made prisoners-of-war.

ALEXANDRIA FALLS; BUKHAREST IS ONLY FIFTY MILES AWAY

Bad Roads May Delay Further Advance; All Guns At Craiova Saved

MACKENSEN'S PLAN

Leads all Germans Into Rumania; Leaves Dobrudja To Balkan Allies

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, November 27.—A German official communique reports: We have taken Alexandria, 50 miles south-west of Bukharest.

A Rumanian official communique reports: We have retired from the Alt and Topolos a little eastward. Violent engagements are taking place in the direction of Smardioan, south of Alexandria.

The Amsterdam correspondent of The Times states that a German correspondent, telegraphing from General von Falkenhayn's headquarters, admits that the Rumanians succeeded in rescuing all their artillery from Craiova, including their heavy guns. The special correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung on the Rumanian front reports that any further advance of the Germans beyond the Alt may be delayed, owing to the condition of the roads.

Rome, November 27.—Marshal von Mackensen crossed the Danube with all his German troops, leaving the Turks and Bulgarians in the Dobrudja.

Petrograd, November 27.—An official communique reports: The retiring Rumanian detachments are utilising the natural features of the country to resist the enemy's advance in West Wallachia. After crossing the Danube at Zumnitza, the enemy occupied positions along the River Vide, between Valeni and Rusendewade.

Rapidity of Germans' Advance Big Feature

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

New York, November 25.—The military expert of the New York Times says: "The situation in Rumania is rapidly becoming critical. Falkenhayn has broken the Rumanian front badly; his sudden, overpowering stroke has apparently cut off the Rumanian forces in Western Wallachia and completely severed their lines of communication. This army is practically gone and will be forced to capitulate.

"The capture in both men and munitions will be large and a staggering blow is being dealt to Rumania. The most dangerous feature of the entire proceeding is the rapidity of the German advances.

"The blow struck at the Entente by this loss of Rumanian territory is severe. Evidence indicates that Rumania is about to be crushed in the jaws of a nut-cracker.

Official German telegram.—Headquarters, November 25.—In the Gyergyo Mountains, a hostile attack on the Barcanejagra was sanguinarily repulsed.

South of the Alt River Pass through the Transylvanian Alps, German and Austro-Hungarian troops, in spite of a tenacious resistance, captured several towns from the Rumanians. Three officers and 800 men were made prisoners. The enemy's resistance on the lower Alt has been broken. We have crossed the river there.

On the western frontier of Rumania, in the forest mountains north-east of Turnu Severin, the Rumanian battalions, which are cut off from the main army, are still offering a tenacious resistance.

Forces of the allied Central Powers, after crossing the Danube from the south, have gained a footing on Rumanian soil. Near Racovita, civilian inhabitants have again taken part in the fighting against our troops.

Headquarters, November 26.—In the Alt valley, Rimnic-Valcea has been captured. On the heights north of Curteau de Arges, the Rumanians are offering a tenacious resistance.

In the territory east of the lower Alt, Geman cavalry, under the command of Lieutenant-General Count von Schmettow, repulsed a Rumanian cavalry division, which had offered an engagement. The German cavalry are advancing victoriously.

The road from the Alt eastwards is occupied by fleeing cart columns. Their retreat is marked by burning towns. We are in touch with the forces which crossed the Danube.

An advance of hostile rifles, assisted by fire from the sea, along the coast against our right wing of the Dobrudja army, failed.

Under the eyes of Field Marshal von Mackensen, the Danube army, chosen for further operations in Western Rumania, crossed to the other bank, as planned. We arrived before Alexandria. The Danube has risen high on account of the thawing. In the crossing of the Danube by our fighting troops, there co-operated excellently, in addition to our brave pioneers, parts of the Imperial motor boat corps and of the Austro-Hungarian Danube flotilla, under the command of Captain Lucich, also Austro-Hungarian pioneer detachments under the command of Major-General Gaugl.

Official Austro-Hungarian telegram.—Vienna, November 24.—In the district of Rimnic-Valcea, the enemy continue to offer a tenacious resistance.

LEO TOLSTOY'S PLAY MAKES A TRIUMPH

The Living Corpse, a Very Human Work, Is Artistically Produced

New York, October 19.—An artistic triumph quite as great as was achieved by the American stage in the production of Galsworthy's "Justice" last spring was registered by the local German stage last night when the first performance in this country of Leo Tolstoy's drama, "Der lebende Leichnam" ("The Living Corpse,") was given at the Irving Place Theater. It is rarely that New York playgoers are offered the opportunity of witnessing a drama so sincerely human and so artistically produced as this posthumous work of the Russian author, acted by Rudolf Christians and his splendid company.

It is related that this play remained unprinted and unacted until several years after the death of Count Tolstoy at his request, since its characters and the story were taken from life, and he did not wish to offend the principals, many of them prominent in Russian society. Certainly the drama's roots burrow into life itself; even in form it is not of the theater, but unfolds its story in a series of concise, throbbing slices of life.

As originally written there were twelve of these scenes grouped in six acts. All except one of these episodes were included in the version acted last night, but the division was into three acts. In a drama so episodical a swift succession of scenes is essential, and this was achieved by the use of an inner stage with the alternate episodes acted on it and the fore-stage. By means of this old device the performance occupied but little more time than the average drama consumes. The ingenuity and taste displayed in devising the settings was no neglible part of the worth of the whole.

If Tolstoy intended his drama to convey anything but an absorbing story, it was the irony of laws which bind those united unhappily in wedlock so inflexibly that there is no escape except through a breaking of the moral law or through death. The protagonist of the drama is a weak but by no means vicious man, who is convinced that his wife loves another, and who is willing to stand aside that she may marry him. He shrinks at the distasteful business of furnishing false evidence that would procure a divorce, and he offers when he tries to kill himself. It is a gypsy woman, whose impassioned but pure love has come to fill th void in his life, who counsels a sudden disappearance.

And so he becomes a living dead man and his wife innocently marries the other man when there is convincing evidence that he has been drowned. Months later a blackmailer learns the secret of the live corpse through overhearing him tell the tale in a low restaurant, and the three are brought to trial.

When the first husband learns from his lawyer that exile with his former wife in Siberia or perhaps forgiveness by the Church, but with no release for either, are the only sentences they can get, he shoots himself in the crowded foyer of the court.

With but a few exceptions the play was beautifully acted. Direktor Christians gave a magnificent performance in the title role, suggesting the overwhelming moral struggle in which the man was constantly engaged and the gradual physical and spiritual disintegration with fine skill. Annie Rub-Forster as the wife, Heinrich Marlow, Ernst Hanns Unterkircher, Flora Arndt, and Margarete Christians were all excellent.

"Der lebende Leichnam" has been acted in Vienna and in Berlin. Max Reinhardt produced it in one of his theaters. It is not strange that American producers have passed it by, because its episodic character and its unhappy ending would militate against its achieving any great popularity. And yet there is more real drama in any of a number of its scenes than in a dozen false and futile Broadway "punch" melodramas. In its succession of episodes there is the cumulative force inherent in the old Greek tragedies. Surely the drama offers a chance for an American manager who wants to do something notable. Without waiting for that hypothetical time lovers of thue art in the theater should journey to the Irving Place. The play is published in English, so a knowledge of German is not necessary.

New Carrel Process Reduces Amputations

DR ALEXIS CARREL.

Paris, October 24.—An entirely new method of sterilising and healing wounds developed by Dr. Alexis Carrel, of New York, Nobel prize winner, has resulted in reducing the number of amputations by fifty percent according to reports being received today from the hospital at Compiegne, the American Hospital at Neuilly and the American and Belgian Hospitals in Belgium.

According Hugues le Roux, editor of the Natin, the process consists of complete irrigation of the wounds by means of a rubber tube with numerous branches, perforated with many small holes. Every corner or possible pocket is thoroughly cleansed. When examination shows that the wound is aseptic, the wound is closed.

News Brevities

The audience at the Victoria Theater yesterday evening were at one in voting Ambrose and Peggy Barker, the main line in the present bill, a delightful entertainment in themselves. They have a fine record from the Alhambra, Coliseum and Pavillon, London, Moss and Stoll tours, an African tour, Bandman's Indian Circuit, &c., and, in "Revue Mad," they put on a clever and most amusing potpourri of artistic singing and harmony, with skits and impressions of well-known actors and actresses and imitations of almost anything—babies to violins, as they put it themselves. Both have good voices and there is not a taint of vulgarity the whole way through.

RAISING $130,000,000 IN U. S. FOR WAR ORPHANS OF FIGHTING FRANCE

Americans Organise World's Greatest Philanthropy As Mark Of Gratitude

200,000 CHILDREN IN NEED

Plan for 15 Years' Work Till All Made Fatherless Are Self-Supporting

New York, October 14.—Philanthropy on the biggest scale the world has ever known, an undertaking to care for the hundreds of thousands of orphaned children of French soldiers until they shall be capable of self-support, came into being in this city yesterday, when a group of men of national prominence organised the American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans and announced that they would raise a fund of $130,000,000 Gold. Not one cent of this fund will be employed for operating expenses, and every dollar will be devoted to the support of helpless children. The photographs and histories of more than 200,000 of these orphans have already been obtained.

The society is to be the practical expression of America's gratitude to France for her aid in the founding of this Republic at the time of the American Revolution, and of this country's sympathy for the suffering that war has brought on France.

Already the organisers of the enterprise have subscribed more than $125,000 for the expenses of the first two years, and have pledged themselves to provide the expenses of operation as long as may be necessary through the fifteen years for which the society has been incorporated. The Directors met yesterday afternoon, after a luncheon at the Downtown Association, and, with these details provided for made public their plans for conducting such a charitable enterprise as never before had been undertaken.

Many Notable Men on List

These men have accepted posts as officers and Directors of the society:

Honorary Vice Presidents—Edward Douglass White, Chief Justice of the United States; Cardinal Farley, Bishop David H. Greer, Robert Bacon, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Dr. John Grier Hibben, President of Princeton University; Dr. John H. Finley, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York; President—William D. Guthrie; Vice Presidents—James Stillman, J. Pierpont Morgan, and Ambrose Monell; Treasurer—Thomas Cochran; Secretary—Snowden A. Fahnestock; General Manager—Clyde A. Pratt, Executive Secretary of the War Relief Clearing House; Directors—George F. Baker, Jr., Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., James M. Beck, S. Reading Bertron, James Byrne, Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., Thomas Cochran, R. Fulton Cutting, Charles Stewart Davison, Eugene Delano, Daniel Guggenheim, William D. Guthrie, Alexander J. Hemphill, Adrian Iselin, George Grant Mason, Charles T. Mathews, Ambrose Monell, Victor Morawetz, Dwight W. Morrow, J. P. Morgan, Otis A. Mygatt, Seward Prosser, Percy A. Rockefeller, Sylvanus L. Schoonmaker, John W. Simpson, Charles Steele, James Stillman, Dr. Lewis A. Stimson, Willard D. Straight, Henry M. Tilford, Edward Tuck, Frank A. Vanderlip, George W. Wickersham, and Albert H. Wiggin.

The society has come into existence with more than 100 members. It is to have a nation-wide membership, with headquarters in New York and branches throughout the United States. The country is to be organised thoroughly. State by State. The offices of the society at present are at 44 Wall Street.

Will Have Paris Committee

The work will be directed from this country, but there will be a Paris committee of seven members, and work will be done to some extent through, or in co-operation with, organisations already in existence in France. Members of the committee who make their homes in Paris will be on this committee. Three of the seven will be James Stillman, Edward Tuck, and Otis Mygatt. They will oversee the distribution of the fund. The activities of the society will be made as little bureaucratic and as personal as possible. Officials will get into direct communication with the children or those persons entitled to represent them, and records of each case will be kept.

The enterprise was conceived in early Summer and its creators drew up such a prospectus as would be provided for the launching of a business. This was modified as developments required, and yesterday the following plan of organisation was adopted by the Directors and made public:

"A charitable society has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York with the name of the American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans, as a membership corporation, that is, a corporation without capital stock.

"The duration of the corporation has been fixed at fifteen years, as it is contemplated that the necessity for this charity will continue for a number of years after the close of the present war.

"The objects which the society has been organised to accomplish are (1) the raising by voluntary contributions of funds for the aid and relief of needy French children whose fathers have lost their lives as a result of the present war; (2) the systematising and centralising of the collection of funds in America for the purpose, and (3) the effective and beneficient distribution thereof in France.

200,000 Already Need Help

"It is reported that there are already in France at least 200,000 children in need of help, besides a large number of incapacitated soldiers whose families are in want. The State allowance for destitute orphan children is, in most instance, insufficient for their proper maintenance. The daily burden of direct war expenses borne by the French Government is stupendous, and will long preclude the possibility of adequate aid to war orphans and the families of dead and incapacitated soldiers. Americans must help if great destitution and suffering are to be relieved.

"The number of directors is thirty-four, which will be later increased to forty. There will be an Executive Committee of the Board of Directors, consisting of nine Directors, to whom will be delegated the details of management of the affairs of the society, subject to the control of the board. There will also be a Finance Committee of five Directors and such other committees as the board may appoint and a committee of members in France. There will be one or more Honorary Vice Presidents, a President, one or more Vice Presidents, a General Manager, a Treasurer, a Secretary, etc.

"The membership is divided into Founders, who will contribute toward the expenses and objects of the society $500 or more per annum; Benefactors, who will contribute $250 per annum, and Sustaining Members, who will contribute $100 per annum. Resignation at any time will terminate further obligation. The by-laws will provide that members may, on joining the society, limit the membership to one or more years.

Will Work With French Society

"The society will at the outset co-operate with the Association Nationale Francaise pour la Protection des Familles des Morts pour la Patrie in distributing the funds collected. It will also co-operate with such other organisations in France as may from time to time be approved by the Board of Directors or Executive Committee, and avail of their facilities for investigation and distribution if these be found to be satisfactory.

"It is intended that the dues of members of the society or contributions specifically for that purpose shall provide the expenses of the management and of the collection and distribution of funds, to the end that, in appealing to Americans for donations for the relief of French war orphans the assurance may be given that every dollar contributed will go to the objects of the charity and that no part will be deducted for expenses of any kind, either here or abroad. Such an assurance has been found most desirable, and frequently necessary, in collecting funds given to charity.

"The expenses of administration, collection, investigation, and distribution will unavoidably be large. In order to avoid the delay which would ensue if the administration could not be organised or the work of soliciting, collecting, and distributing funds actively started until the membership in the society was numerous enough to assure adequate funds for these expenses from the dues of members, it was deemed advisable to create an underwriting fund to guarantee these expenses for the first two years. This underwriting is to be callable pro rata by the Board of Directors or Executive Committee of the society from time to time as may be found necessary to meet the current expenses during the first two years, and is to be reimbursable, in the discretion of the Directors, if and whenever the dues by founders, benefactors, and sustaining members or contributions toward expenses become sufficient to enable the society, without impairing its charitable work to repay, in part or in whole, the advances made by underwriters for expenses.

The Underwriting Committee

"It is hoped that in two years the membership will be sufficiently numerous to provide for all operating expenses out of membership dues, and that no guaranty fund for deficit in expenses will thereafter be necessary.

"The following gentlemen, among the members of the society, have agreed to subscribe to the underwriting fund in various amounts, which so far aggregate $125,500:

George F. Baker.	Chas, T. Mathews.
James M. Beck.	Ambrose Monell.
C. N. Bliss, Jr.	Victor Morawetz.
James Byrne.	J.P.Morgan & Co.

The certificate of incorporation, having the signatures of the thirty-four Directors, was executed October 11. The officers and members of the society have been brought together without regard to nationality, religion, or politics. With a large number of representative Americans already members it is expected that the society will eventually take in the leading men and women of every part of the United States. Though only a slight knowledge of the proposed work of the society has been made public through its individual members demands for membership are already coming in.

Expression of Gratitude

The feeling influencing the members to form the organisation was put into words by a member yesterday as follows:

"With the object of expressing in a practical way the gratitude that Americans have always felt for the aid given to this country by France during the Revolution, and their sympathy for the French people in their present affliction, the American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans has been incorporated and the organisation papers recorded today.

"As Washington declared, the generosity of France to America during the War of the Revolution must inspire every citizen of the States with sentiments of the most unalterable gratitude. The help that Lafayette and Rochambeau gave to this nation at the beginning of its history can never be repaid, but in remembering the personal sacrifices of these heroes whose names are immortal, the fact is often overlooked that the French Government of that day impoverished itself by the expenses of the war with England to secure the independence of the United States. The recollection of Washington's words, our national obligation to France, and American sympathy for the suffering brought upon the French people by the pending war, have been the inspiration of the formation of the American Society for the Relief of French War Orphans."

At the Directors' meeting yesterday twenty of the thirty-four were present. J. P. Morgan, acting Vice President, who is now abroad, was one of the absentees.

'Queen of the Munitions Fleet' Defies German U-Boat

S. S. Adriatic

New York, October 15.—The White Star Liner Adriatic, with a cargo of munitions and passengers will defy the German U-Boat which is believed to be lying in wait somewhere off the Atlantic Coast. "The Queen of the Munitions Fleet" has sailed despite the U-Boat situation. She has on board 18,000 tons of munitions and 300 passengers.

Shipping Bulletins

The steamer Arab, which has arrived at Philadelphia from Dunkirk with heavy weather damage, is a vessel of 4,191 gross tons, built in 1890, and owned by Messrs. A. R. Burkill & Sons, of Shanghai. The casualty, says a London paper, is of interest for the example it affords of the extraordinary high values on which steamers are being insured. This vessel under a former owner was valued for insurance at just over £20,000. This, moreover, was under the American flag, the date being just previous to the war, when American values were on an average higher than those in the United Kingdom. Her present insurances are effected on a value of £75,000.

Owing to the lack of a suitable crane, shear-legs or other appliances for handling heavy cargo at Hankow, the main mast of the s.s. Brinkburn, well known in Shanghai, which recently arrived in Hankow to discharge heavy railway material for the Canton-Hankow Railway, buckled up, just clear of the derrick bracket, whilst lifting out a "Mogul" boiler, which fell into the pontoon alongside, without much damage. Fortunately no-one was killed though one coolie was injured. The vessel, as she lies, presents a curious sight with her foremast alone standing and the wreck of the mainmast lying along the deck and projecting over the port quarter.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha has closed its Kobe-North China line with the sailing from Newchwang a few days ago of the s.s. Takeshima Maru. The Yokohama-North China liner Sagami Maru also suspended her call at Newchwang for the present season with her departure therefrom last Sunday. As the port is, however, still ice-free, the N. Y. K. despatched thereto as an auxiliary steamer the s.s. Eiko Maru, which may be the last N. Y. K. liner despatched thereto for the present year.

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Do you realise what important work the kidneys do? Do you know that every drop of blood flows through the kidneys hundreds of times a day? Do you know why?

To be filtered,—to have the impurities taken out. That is the great work the kidneys have to do. They keep the blood pure—take out the poisonous waste and dispose of it through the bladder.

It is this poisonous kidney waste which causes gravel, backache, rheumatism, lumbago, dropsy and stone, when it is left in the system by weak kidneys.

A kidney and bladder medicine is needed to help the kidneys throw off this poisonous waste. That is what Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are for. They are solely for the kidneys and urinary system. They do one thing only, but they do that one thing well. They regulate the kidneys and bladder like ordinary medicines regulate the bowels. They are guaranteed to contain no poisonous mineral ingredients or injurious drugs whatever, and they have no bad after-effects.

DOCTOR DESCRIBES AN ALASKAN SPREE

Hootchinoo Mixed With Wood Ashes Furnishes Police-Provoking Exhilaration

HENCE THE 'SOURDOUGH'

A Couple of Oil Cans and a Gun Barrel Provide An Adequate Still

The ingenuity exercised by the natives of Alaska in the endeavor to become intoxicated is described in the current issue of The Medical Record by its special correspondent there. He writes from St. Michael under date of August 24. The favorite methods seem to be by the "sourdough" or the flavoring extract routes, although the Government has put its ban on both as beverages. According to the writer, Alaska must import a greater quantity and variety of flavoring extracts, which contain about 80 per cent of alcohol, in proportion to population than any other country in the world. He writes:

"It is probably not known how long the human race has been addicted to alcoholism, but the first paper on the subject was written in 1789 by John Coakley Lettsom, one of the original founders of the Medical Society of London. With the advancement of science many new intoxicating beverages have come into use. Many other liquids containing from a fraction of 1 per cent to 50 per cent or more of alcohol are used as intoxicating beverages, although they are not put on the market for that purpose.

"The Territory of Alaska is not 'dry,' but the sparsely settled country with limited and slow transportation has invited many persons who long for the physiological effects of alcohol and cannot obtain it in the usual beverage form to attempt to manufacture or to use some other liquid which contains alcohol. It is not uncommon in some places in Alaska where there are no saloons to see a man go into a trading post or general merchandise store and say that he wants something to drink, and ask, 'What have you that contains the largest per cent?' 'How much has this?' 'How much has that?' meaning the percentage of alcohol, and pointing to some medicane, perfume, toilet water, or flavoring extracts on the shelf.

"There are many persons in Alaska, both white and native, who resort to various means of securing alcoholic intoxicants. The most common of these unusual alcoholic drinks in places which are in touch with civilisation are the flavoring extracts. I mean by places that are in touch with civilisation a place that has a store or a trading post. In towns that are large enough to have a saloon the saloons are patronised. It appears not to make any difference whether the extract be lemon, ginger, vanilla, pineapple, or what. It is sometimes drink straight and at times mixed with cider, grape juice, milk, 'sourdough,' root beer, or hot water. Sugar may or may not be added.

"Most of these extracts contain about 80 per cent alcohol, and their consumption in Alaska as a beverage has become so great that it is now a violation of the law to sell them to a native or to any one for drinking purposes. It would be interesting, indeed, to know just how much of these extracts is consumed in Alaska annually for drinking purposes, but it must be a large quantity, as every one seems to know of them and talk about them as intoxicating drinks. Through this port alone the amount of extracts shipped appears all but of proportion for their use for flavoring purposes, considering the population.

"In places that are not in touch with civilisation, especially native villages, 'sourdough' is the favorite intoxicating drink. This is sometimes called 'hootch' or 'hootchinoo.' The latter term is thought to have originated in Kamchatka, across Bering Sea, in Russia, whence the art of making sourdough probably spread to Alaska. The term 'hootch' is a slang expression, and is at times used to designate any intoxicating liquor, while hootchinoo is more properly destified sourdough. Sourdough is made by mixing a very thin dough of flour and water, adding yeast, and setting aside to ferment. This fermentation is facilitated by placing the vessel in warm water or in a warm place.

"As the fermentation takes place the liquid turns an amber color and large flakes of starch float to the top, later to settle to the bottom, leaving a clear colored liquid on top. Rice and barley are sometimes used instead of flour; and it has been said that the addition of molasses to the tormenting mass makes a stronger preparation. The entire mass has a sour smell, hence the name sourdough. Alcohol is formed during this fermentation and after it has reached the required percentage the liquid is strained.

"Some persons drink the liquid just as it is strained off, and this is the usual way. Sometimes the liquid is distilled, giving it a better smell and taste and making it clearer and more concentrated. As this method requires some apparatus, time, and experience, it is the uncommon form. This liquid appears to be much more intoxicating than beer and the laws of Alaska prohibit its manufacture. The writer has seen persons so intoxicated from its use as to threaten the lives of others and require confinement. A 'sourdough fiend' told the writer a few days ago that the addition of a teaspoonful of wood ashes to a pint of sourdough very materially increased its intoxicating qualities.

"Although it requires some apparatus to make hootchinoo—the distilled sourdough—it is remarkable what simple apparatus may be used for this distilling purpose. A common home-made still is improvised by taking two coal oil cans and connecting them with a pipe. The pipe enters one and passes through the other. The sourdough is boiled in the former and condensed by ice in the latter, the hootchinoo dropping out of the end of the pipe as a colorless alcoholic liquid. In the absence of a pipe gun barrels have been used for this purpose, and it is believed that there are many houses in Alaska which have some such apparatus in them.

"When the materials can be obtained the following is a favorite method of manufacturing hootch. About a pint of sourdough is mixed with about a gallon of cider or grape juice and the mixture is left open for several days in a warm place. This mixture becomes quite intoxicating. As these liquids are not consumed for their taste, but for their effects only, a great deal of trouble results in Alaska from their use.

"There are special agents for the suppression of intoxicating liquors among the natives of Alaska and probably no other alcoholic drink gives these agents as much trouble as sourdough. It may be interesting to note that a white man who spends more than one year in Alaska is called a 'sourdough.' The 'sourdough' says this is due to the fact that the white men make sourdough (yeast) hot cakes, while the native say it is because of the early adaptation of the white man's taste to 'the native drink.'"

ARRESTED IN JAPAN

Dr. Rowe and Mystic Mora, who begin a new short season at the Apollo, on Friday, had an adventure when touring Japan lately. They went ashore at Moji and took their camera for the purpose of making a few shapshots. They succeeded in taking five pictures of Japanese street scenes when three soldiers stopped thing and formed a barrier with their rifles around the couple. Another soldier went to a nearby telephone and rang up a detective, who confiscated Rowe's camera and marched the pair down to a large barracks, followed by the soldiers and half the population of Moji.

The couple were detained for over four hours while the public procurator was sent for, and the five films were developed. An examination then took place before the procurator and as the films were of an innocent nature this gentleman ordered the release of the pair.

A Russo-German Alliance

(New York Times)

Professor Muensterberg and George Bernard Shaw make similar remarks regarding the prospects of a Russo-German alliance or entente after the war. Hardly anything can be said to be impossible or even surprising regarding this astonishing war, or the conditions which will follow it. Within easy recollection there is a precedent in the Russo-Japanese treaty. Professor Muensterberg strengthens it by recalling that Bismarck always favored friendship with Russia for Germany. But circumstances alter cases. Bismarck's conception was a political connection between two nations whose economic relations are antagonistic. That would be an unnatural alliance, with seeds of instability which are lacking in the case of Russia and Japan.

Germany in later years has been markedly an industrial nation. Russia has hardly emerged from a feudal status, and is characteristically an agricultural nation. Russia grievously needs imported capital, both money and the products of machinery. Germany could, in time, export just those things, and it might seem that a prima facie case for joint interest is thereby established. But there never is good feeling between nations in that relation, for the reason that such relations imply "development" in polite phrase, "exploitation" in plainer language. A nation which develops itself with its own resources builds solidly, if slowly. Germany has forced its trade upon Russia in a manner exceeding anything done by investors in Mexico. Germany officially imposed commercial relations upon Russia from which Russia would rather free itself than fasten its chains.

Professor Muensterberg's addition of Japan to the Russo-German alliance only increases the unlikelihood. Japan will not be so easily detached from England. A "common passion" to create a world status animated by hate of England is not imaginable, either with or without the United States. Muensterberg, like Shaw, is good reading, but the amateurs would do well to leave the ending of the war to the economists, rather than to the diplomats or the politicians. The economic conference which is advertised to arrange "after the war" conditions is quite as likely to be held before the war is over, and to settle it on an economic basis rather than on considerations pleasing to thrones or soldiers.

Naming Warships

Our battleships are named after States of the Union, but we have had so few warships of the first line that we have used State names also for some of our cruisers. These names must be changed. The newer cruisers are all named for cities, and there will always be enough such names to meet the demand. Economy must be observed, however, in naming the dreadnoughts. If we continue to build floating fortresses, we may have more of them than States to name them for. The four dreadnoughts to be laid down in 1917 are to be called Colorado, Maryland, Washington, and West Virginia. There are armored cruisers bearing those names now which must be provided with others. There are other armored cruisers called Montana, North Carolina, and South Dakota which should be renamed immediately for the sake of uniformity.

Perhaps the names of warships are not of prime importance. History would have been the same if the Richard and the Alliance, the Constellation and the Insurgente, the Wasp and the Frolic, the Constitution and the Guerriere had been named after famous places or great characters in history.

The bold United States,
Which four-and-forty rates,

would not have yielded to the Macedonian if she had been called the Athenian. Still the glamor surrounding the name of the Victory, Nelson's flagship, does not fade. It is proposed to call our new battle cruisers by names already renowned in our naval history, such as Constitution, Constellation, and Congress. Two of those honorable names are now bestowed on minor naval vessels which are accounted "unserviceable for war purposes." The classical names for warships still applied in most of the European navies to vessels of the first line are used by us chiefly for our colliers and fuel ships, a list of which reminds one of an almanac. If we are to have enough battle cruisers to meet our requirements, some new and suitable plan of naming them must be devised. The dreadnoughts will monopolise the States, the smaller cruisers the cities, and the destroyers the eminent men in our naval history.

Great Britain has its Royal Sovereign and Royal Oak, its Resolution, Revenge, and Renown (three R's more formidable if not more useful than those of childhood), its Valiant and Agincourt and Iron Duke among its big battleships, its Inflexible and Warrior and Leviathan among its cruisers.

France names warships after Danton, Mirabeau, and Voltaire, after Victor Hugo and Ernest Renan. Italy honors the memory of Dante and Leonardo da Vinci by using their names for battleships. Probably public approval would be withheld from a proposal to name American warships after Emerson and Longfellow and Poe. Our literature is not yet connected closely enough with our national history. But we have produced men of power in various walks of life. Many British ships are named for the historic English shires. There are renowned counties in some of our States which may in time pass into history, as in this era of rapid communication counties are losing their old importance.

How to name the ships of our vastly extended navy is an interesting question. It is one in which there need be no bungling if it is intelligently considered. It is not to be denied that some of our own war vessels and some in foreign navies are badly named, as if the names had been accepted by a weary man as a choice of evils. Audacious was an unhappy selection, and it turned out to be an unlucky one. Magnificent suggests a lack of imagination, perhaps because the word has been so shockingly misused. Why should a fighting ship be called Venus or Hebe? Prairie seems a queer name for a boat.—Exchange.

Technical Education in France

Amongst the many educational questions which are being discussed in France at the present time, that of technical education is given a foremost place. The latest development, in this connection, is the program for the re-organisation of technical education in the department of applied arts, outlined recently by M. Dalimier, the minister of fine arts. This program, as was pointed out in a recent despatch to this paper from Paris, is the result of conferences, between manufacturers and the fine arts minister, on the question of arousing interest in professional education in industrial circles, by encouraging co-operation in the outlining of curriculum. The program provides, amongst other things, for the establishment of classes, the increase of lectures on art for artisans, and the presentation of monetary rewards to employers for the best-trained apprentices.

The question of apprenticeship is dealt with very fully by M. Dalimier in his program. The necessity for the apprenticeship system is, he declares, recognised, and the demand is made by the manufacturers for the re-establishment of the contract between employers and the families of apprentices. It was demanded also, he added, that it should be made compulsory for the employer to send his apprentices to the classes relating to his trade, and compulsory for the apprentice to attend them.

The revival of the apprenticeship system is being discussed in other countries besides France, and there would seem to be a very general movement in certain quarters in its favor. It is clear, however, from the last of M. Dalimier's remarks, just quoted, that, if any such revival takes place, there will be a careful consideration of both sides of the contract. One of the great defects of the old apprenticeship law was its lack of elasticity, and the way in which its terms unduly favored the employer. Any new scheme, moreover, would have to make provision for the equalisation of opportunity for the children, as between parents who could afford to apprentice their sons and those who could not. "If a boy's parents," a recent critic of the proposal in England declared, "could not afford to have him indentured, he would never be allowed to handle the tools in a trade for which he might have unmistakable aptitude, and he would therefore, be condemned to low wages and no opportunity." Such a condition of things would, of course, have to be carefully guarded against, and will no doubt be guarded against in any apprenticeship scheme which may be devised in France or elsewhere—Exchange

What The Christian Missions Are Doing In Shanghai

Short Statements By Leading Workers

The following papers which were read at a recent meeting of the Shanghai Missionary Association contain much valuable information concerning the work of local missions. The first installment in the series appeared in Sunday's China Press. The second in Tuesday's issue. Records show that there are more than four hundred Protestant missionaries living in Shanghai. Many of these have no official connection with the local Church but are engaged in business, editorial and other duties in connection with the whole of China. These papers do not deal with this general work but only with what missions are doing locally in Shanghai. The story begins with the year 1843 the year after Shanghai was opened as a port, when Dr. Medhurst and Dr. Lockhart representing the London Mission landed here and began their work in the native city. That they were not welcome guests was shown by the fact that the tracts which they distributed were burned in public but in recent years the attitude of hostility has been turned into friendliness as is shown by the progress indicated in these papers:

Y.M.C.A. National Committee

By Rev. C. L. Boynton

The national work was first organised in 1896 to supervise the work in the student Associations. Mr. D. W. Lyon was elected National Secretary. In 1907 a General Committee was formed to supervise and promote both city and student Associations. The National Committee in its present form and name was organised in 1912 at the National Convention held in Peking.

The work of the National Committee is now carried on through the Executive Committee and the following sub-committees: business, city, student, publication, lecture, physical, and secretarial training, and a special sub-committee on the Student Volunteer Movement for the Ministry. The Secretarial Training Department was organised in January 1916. The Student Volunteer Movement for the Ministry became an integral part of the National Committee at the National Convention in 1912. Each of these departments is served by one or more secretaries. The present staff of the National Committee consists of twenty-seven secretaries, Chinese and foreign.

The activities of the Committee consist in promotion of new Associations in cities and colleges and in supervising and maintaining the efficiency of the work of these Associations. It also carries on work of a more general nature through the publication and lecture departments and student conferences, seven of which were held in 1916. The most important advance of the past year was the inauguration of the work of the Secretarial Training Department. With the return of Mr. Wilbur to the City Department and Mr. Rugh to the Student Department, special attention will be given to the development of these features during the coming year.

Y.W.C.A. Shanghai

By Miss M. McNeill

The city work of the Shanghai Association was organised in 1908, with a staff of one foreign and one Chinese secretaries. Five years before this some pioneer work had been done by Miss Bermingier amongst industrial women. Since the Shanghai Association was the first in China, the beginnings of work were naturally slow, but the foundations laid were good. During the past three years an Educational Department has been built up. An afternoon school opened for the benefit of married women and others. And Bible study has been strongly emphasised. The membership is over 300; the Association is entirely self-supporting; there is a staff of four Chinese and three foreign secretaries; the affairs of the Association is under the control of a Board of Directors, all of whom are Chinese. At a finance campaign instituted by the Board of Directors last year $2,600 was raised entirely by the Chinese members. At present twelve educational classes and twelve Bible study classes are carried on weekly. The aim of the Association for its members is self-development and service; the ideal of service is strongly emphasised, and the day is not far distant when the main responsibility will be borne by the Chinese staff and Committee members. At the newly rented property in Quinsan Road a beginning has been made at establishing a supervised playground for children; an athletic club has also been formed.

The Physical Department of the National work has its headquarters in Shanghai. This year sixteen students have enrolled for the teachers' training course of two years. Nine of these girls are non-Christian, and many come from Government normal schools, returning on graduation to teach in the schools from which they come. This work for the physical betterment of China's women is of the greatest import.

American Bible Society

By Rev. C. L. Boynton

The China Agency of the American Bible Society was established in 1876. Its headquarters are in Shanghai. There are eight non-Chinese Superintendents to native colporteurs located at Peking, Canton, Nanking, Kiukiang, Hankow, Changsha, Chungkiang and Chengtu. From the headquarters of these Sub-Agents colporteurs go out in every direction through the Republic. The circulation is chiefly in the Mandarin, Wenli (Classical in various versions), and Easy Wenli languages, but also to a considerable extent in the local colloquial dialects spoken by millions of people. The circulation for 1915 was 2,244,746 volumes, being a net increase over 1914 of 271,293. This is again a record circulation, exceeding all previous totals, and brings the grand total since the founding of the Agency to 20,916,061 volumes.

British And Foreign Bible Society

By Rev. C. L. Boynton

The British and Foreign Bible Society was born in 1804 and is still "going strong." It exists for one single object—to supply every man with the Holy Scriptures in his mother-tongue. It concerns itself solely with circulating, without note and comment, that Book which is the charter of Christ's Church throughout all the world: and in this aim it unites Christians of almost every communion.

Its Publications: The Society has published the Scriptures in 500 distinct forms of speech. During the year ending March, 1916 it added 10 new languages to its issues. Since its foundation to March 1916 its issues exceeded 270,000,000. For the remainder of the present year 10,000,000 can safely be added to this total. During last year the circulation reached the high figure of 11,000,000 copies, every fifth copy being sold to a Chinese reader.

The Staff: In foreign lands the Society maintains depots in nearly 100 of the chief cities of the world. It employs 1,200 native Christian colporteurs and 500 native Christian Bible-women. Besides this there is a large staff of European superintendents, agents and sub-agents.

War Distribution: The total Scriptures distributed among our soldiers and sailors during the present European conflict already exceeds five million Testaments, Gospels and Psalters.

In China: (a) Printing—During the first nine months of the present year the Society has printed on behalf of the China Agency 2,565,805 copies. During the remaining quarter of the year at least a quarter of a million will be added to this total. The printing accounts alone represent an expenditure of over £6,000. (b) Issues—The issues for the nine months ending September 30 show a total of 1,831,635, an increase of 200,840.

Future Developments: Hitherto the Society has only issued the Scriptures in the "Shangti" term. Recently we have had repeated requests for Scripture portions in the "Shen" term. The Acting Agent of the China Agency is now taking steps, at the request of his Home Committee, to supply Old and New Testament portions in the "Shen" term to those who desire the same.

Every book sent out is costing more than the cost a year ago. The prayers and gifts of God's people were never more needed by the Society than today.

Christian Literature Society

By Rev. C. L. Boynton

Staff of seven foreigners and fourteen Chinese. Dr. Richard retired and is now secretary emeritus; Mr. Mason, of the Friends Mission joined. Besides there are five other missionaries, resident at Shanghai, Ningpo, Mukden and Hankow, who gave half or full time to our Society.

Books issued during the year 17. In press 16. Tracts for the Times, Deeper Truths Tracts, 18.

We issue three magazines; Ta Tung Pao, Church Review, and Women's Messenger.

Most contribution of the year has been the production of a Chinese Bible Dictionary, which is based on Hastings well-known works. Thirty missionaries have contributed articles. Over 4,000 advance orders were received, proving the need for such a work. It will soon be issued.

The Press Bureau continues its beneficent services, and articles are published at stated intervals in about 16 newspapers in the various provinces, giving useful information on social problems and education, and dealing with living questions of the day.

Our next great undertaking is a Standard commentary on the whole Bible, intended more especially for the ministry. The preparations are well in hand, and the New Testament is to be started at once, with Dr. Hayes of Shantung as associate editor, and a number of Chinese as advisers.

Funds during the year have suffered somewhat owing to the war, sales also owing to the unrest in China. The rise in the price of silver has also affected the funds financially.

There is a large foreign library, with books on almost every kind of subject, which is at the service of all decent folks—who will not steal! There is a very extensive Chinese library, one of the best in China.

There are auxiliaries in London, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Liverpool, Wales, etc.—Nine tenths of our funds are thus supplied, and Canada is a generous supporter of special lines of work. We get nothing from U. S. A., but some of the missions there support the writers employed by members of their staff.

Smaller Missions

By Rev. J. A. Heal

I have been asked to prepare a short paper giving what information I could gather about the work of some of the smaller missions in Shanghai, I mean smaller in so far as their work here is concerned. The names of some were given by the secretary and I was requested to mention any others known to me. I will say at once that I have not made any enquiries about work carried on amongst non-Chinese, as the ten minutes allotted me does not allow sufficient time to speak adequately of work amongst Chinese. There is Christian work amongst the Japanese, and I wish I could say that I know of some effort towards bringing the Gospel to the many Sikhs, Pathans, and other Indians in Shanghai, but prayer to that end still waits its fulfillment.

The Foreign Christian Mission

I will first speak of the work of the Foreign Christian Mission which began here some thirty years ago. Many of us remember with kindly affection the long years of faithful labor of our brother, Rev. James Ware, now at Home with the Lord. Since his death, quite recently in fact, the Board in the United States, has decided (to the regret of some who have long known the work) to withdraw from this center and concentrate more upon work in Mandarin speaking districts. The number of members on the roll is about 200, and these are trying to carry on the Church work independently. Some meet in the old building on Miller Road, loaned to them for the time being by the Society and support their own Pastor, and others meet in their own hired house in the Wayside district. We wish them all success.

But Miss Tonkin of that Mission bravely determined that she would not leave Shanghai and went home to Australia to make her appeal in person to her Board there. Since her return she has obtained some support from her own church and promises for the future, and is still keeping the flag flying. a A block of Chinese buildings on Kwenming Road has been rented and adapted for the purpose. Anyone who cares to visit there will I am sure be pleased to see what good results can come from the wise use of a little money and much consecrated energy. It proves again that foreign structures are not absolutely necessary for preaching the Gospel or the upbuilding of the Church. It was a great pleasure a few Sundays ago to preach at the afternoon service and to partake of the Lord's supper with the members and workers. On the street there is a school room where a Boys' school of 18 scholars meets, and which is used in the evenings as a street chapel and is generally well-filled. Next to this is a guest room, Chinese style, where visitors are received and talked with. Behind is a chapel for the meetings of Christians, and next to it is a school and class room where Mrs. Ware conducts a girls' school with forty-six scholars enrolled, all fee-paying—a contrast to the days not long ago when this class of girls would need to be paid to come. I ought to say that Mrs. Ware still receives help from the American Board for her work.

Upstairs are rooms for the Chinese helpers, and Miss Tonkin also lives on the premises. A Chinese male teacher, and a lady teacher for the girls, an Evangelist and two Bible women, complete, I believe the present staff. As to the future, our Sister hopes other helpers will come from Australia, where the Mission Board of the Church is beginning to regret that the Shanghai work was abandoned.

What The Christian Missions Are Doing

chapel and school on North Szechuen Road. It was begun with Mrs. Woodberry's arrival in Shanghai from Tientsin in 1900, where they had previously been working. Mr. and Mrs. Woodberry's present work is almost entirely scholastic. The students number 160, the larger portion being boys. The classes range from kindergarten to High school, the instruction in the lower classes is largely Chinese, in the higher in English, while excellent teachers of Mandarin, Cantonese and Shanghai dialects are engaged. The students are mostly middle-class, neither very rich nor very poor. The services in the chapel are attended chiefly by the students and friends, but Mr. Woodberry contemplates very soon, erecting a chapel to seat 500 on the vacant piece of ground in front of the school. Though there are so many services of sorts on North Szechuen Road, the rapidly increasing population in that district gives sufficient field for all Christian effort.

Miss Hornby's Work

Down the Yangtszepoo Road we get amongst the mills and at certain hours of the day or night we become surrounded by hundreds of girls and women from say ten years of age to about 50 or 60, all employed in the mills. They come from all districts, the villages inland from Yangtszepoo being almost denuded of their female inhabitants. Miss Hornby began her self-denying labors amongst them about eleven years ago, before that they might have said with truth that "no man cared for their souls." At the corner of Ford Lane our sister has had for years a Chinese corner shop which she has used for a hospital dispensary, and Gospel meetings. The medical work is now becoming less. Three services are held on Sundays and others during the week. The rooms are always open for the girls to sit in and rest while waiting for the gates to open, and as their hours of labor are from 12 to 14 each day we can understand they have little time for either tennis or even golf—but they surely need some resting place. Here they come when sick or when accident has befallen and are treated not in a mere professional way but with the kind sympathetic touch of a Christian women, how much this means to them perhaps we cannot realise. They come also with their troubles and sorrows and sometimes find a place of repentance with tears. But they hear the old Gospel story, that story which has ever been a balm of gracious healing to troubled hearts and tired bodies.

Just this month our sister is expanding her work, having taken another house at the corner of Macgregor Road, which is to be used for dispensary and evangelistic work amongst barrowmen. We pray that God will grant abundant success.

Dr. Hallock's Ragged Schools

Dr. Hallock has been for many years an honored member of this Association and through the "Jih Young Ts Ming" is known all over the land. But here in Shanghai his labors are not confined to that useful publication, for he has for some years past opened schools for the very poorest children in several districts, in fact they take the place of the ragged schools at home indeed the children are not only ragged but often very smelly, however, in the East as in the West they are sharp and full of life and fun. There are now schools in five places, all in Chinese houses—in French Town, in Elgin Road, in Chekiang Road, in Kashing Road, and in East Kashing Road. Sunday schools are held at all these places, and at the three latter, day-schools as well. An average 100 attend each place every Lord's Day, thus 500 or more are taught the Gospel message every week. It may be that results cannot easily be tabulated, but surely the heart of the Lord Jesus must be gladdened that in the heat of summer and the cold of winter these little ones are brought under the sweetening influence of His love. It may be that in time to come China will be proud of some of her sons who have been led in the upward path and made to see greater things through the efforts of our brother and his helpers.

The China Inland Mission

The China Inland Mission has morning and afternoon services on Sundays in their Hall on Woosung Road which are well attended and since the English Evangelistic Service on Sunday evenings has been discontinued, now about 18 months, Chinese Evangelistic meetings are held with large attendances. For some years too the friends there have worked two preaching shops, one near Seward Road and one near the Railway Station, but I understand these are likely to be closed through those who were responsible for the rent, etc., leaving Shanghai, as the work in Shanghai does not come upon Mission Funds.

Mandarin Church

There is also a Mandarin Church in Honan Road near the French Concession cared for by Pastor Wang; where some of our famous sinologues help, and while making themselves more perfect, if that is possible, in that elusive dialect, keep up the fervor of their own Missionary spirit.

Ricsha Mission

Mention too must be made of the work amongst the Ricsha coolies, carried on for some three or four years by Mr. Matherson. There are now two places, one in Alabaster Road and one in East Kashing Road (where a new building is to be erected). Meetings are held on Sundays and every day during the week, medical help is given through the kind help of the Shantung Road Hospital, and about 400 or 500 are reached with the Gospel each meeting. There is a Church membership of about 58 and between 50 and 60 day scholars, also a weekly meeting for women is held, well attended, and we wish our brother and his helpers God Speed.

I should also mention a regular Christian service for the prisoners in the Municipal goal, which has been carried on now for many years, I believe it is now in charge of Mr. T. D. Begg.

There is not time for me to say much about my own work, but it is largely outside of Shanghai. We have tried to supply every Post and Telegraph Office with a copy of the word of God—they now number nearly 10,000 about five times the number of ten years ago when I undertook this work. We send a quarterly Gospel paper to all the officers and correspond personally with all who will write to us. I have been able to visit nearly all the offices on this plain South of Wusih, also many in the Ningpo and Shaohing districts, most of my journeys are done in our own house boat "The Gospel Mail."

I am sure we will all join in wishing these various efforts the blessing and favor of God.

NAVY Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Tonight at 8.45, the Buchman Club of the Navy Y.M.C.A., consisting of enlisted men of the Asiatic Fleet, will conduct their third social evening and smoker.

It has been the plan of the club to have special guests at all their activities and many people of Shanghai remember with pleasure these social evenings. This time the entire American Company of the S.V.C. has been invited to be the guests of the Association and a great time is anticipated.

Practically every ship of the Fleet is contributing to the success of the evening and a program that would rival a professional one will be staged. The entire program will be made up of the enlisted men themselves and is as follows:—Piano solos, vocal solos, violin solos, quartet numbers, buck-dancing, wrestling, novelty boxing and regular boxing exhibitions. An adaquate ring has been erected in the social rooms of the Association and all the exhibitions will be run off under expert supervision. Owing to the limited seating capacity and the popularity of the occasion, only the enlisted men of the fleet and the specially invited guests can be accommodated.

PACKERS RAISE PAY OF EMPLOYEES IN U.S.

Prosperity Impels Firms to Add $4,000,000 Annually to Wages Of Meat Handlers

Chicago, October 3.—Two large groups of Chicago workers have been granted raises in pay and shorter working hours.

The advance in pay goes to the thousands of men and women employed in the big packing houses of the stock yards.

Ten shorter working hours go to 20,000 garment workers without reduction of pay, and with time and a half for all overtime work.

An increase of 2½ cents an hour, on a ten-hour day, for all employees of the operating department, all over the United States, was granted by Wilson & Co., Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Morris & Co. and Libby, McNeil & Libby.

The increase will affect more than 60,000 men employed in the big packing centres, and will mean a pay roll increase of more than $4,900,000 annually. More than half the men affected are employed in the Chicago stock yards, and the local payrolls will be swelled more than $8,000 a day.

Employers Act Voluntarily

The actions of both packers and garment manufacturers were voluntary. In neither case was there a threat of labor difficulties, and executives of concerns in both industries say the increases and cutting of hours of labor are merely results of demand for labor, coupled with the policy of sharing profits with workmen.

"We want to take care of our men properly," said Thomas E. Wilson, President of Wilson & Co. "Conditions in the food line are good, and the companies are able to give increases. In our plant, the men will get the extra money on the regular pay day, November 13."

At the Swift, Armour and Morris plants, superintendents confirmed the report that the increase had been granted. The present working day of ten hours was not shortened. At this time, the average wage in the packing houses is $2.50 a day.

$1,000,000 More From Clothiers

The reduction of working time from fifty hours to forty-eight hours a week affects all shops owned by members of the Wholesale Clothiers' Association. Pay will not be reduced, and a time and half will be paid for extra work.

The action will place more than $1,000,000 a year extra in the pay envelopes of the men and women employed in the garment manufacturing industry, according to Jacob Abt, President of the association, because of the great amount of extra work during the busy seasons.

The change goes into effect on December 1. The time reduction brings the hours of labor below those required in the contract between the union and Hart Schacner & Marx, in which fifty hours a week is the basis of pay. The reduction is the third in working hours in the last three years.

The shops in the association are: B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Alfred Decker & Cohn, Hirsch Wickwire Company, Nathan & Fisher, Leopold, Solomon & Eisendrath, Mayer Bros., Rosenwald & Weil, L. Abt & Sons, Ederheimer-Stein Company and Schoenberg Bros.

CHEAP PAPER AFTER WAR

Peace Will Mean Great Unloading Of Stocks

The secretary for Agriculture at Washington, in rleply to an inquiry sent to President Wilson, says:

"A news-print paper is made up of approximately 75 per cent ground wood pulp and 25 per cent sulphite pulp. The Forest Service for several years has been making intensive investigations of both processes of pulp making. In order to make possible a continuous supply of low-priced newsprint two main lines of investigation of the ground wood process were undertaken. The first included intensive studies of processes to obtain exact information concerning the many variables in manufacture. The second was to ascertain which of the numerous American species other than spruce are suitable for ground wood pulp.

"Tests made on 22 species, of which large quantities are available in the United States, have demonstrated that practically all have immediate promise as substitues for spruce in the manufacture of the cheaper grades of papers, such as 'news' manillas, boxboard, etc. The news-print manufactured from the ground wood pulp obtained experimentally from many of these woods was successfully used by the St. Louis Republic and the New York Herald in the printing of a limited number of their current edition.

"One of the most important results of these investigations has been an increased amount of hemlock used for mechanical pulp in the East.

"A detailed study of sulphite pulp manufacturing process is now well advanced.

"Furthermore, the Forest Service has offered for sale at various times large amounts of timber on the national forests in logging chances favorable for pulp operations. These areas are located mainly in the Pacific North-West and in Alaska, and offer combinations of suitable and cheap timber with large quantities of easily developed water power.

"Our experts are inclined to believe that the present conditions may be temporary. I am informed that before the war Eastern markets, which are the principal paper markets of the country, were fully supplied by American mills and the imports from several foreign countries. Prices, as a result, were so low as to offer little inducement to new mills in the West, where our great timber reserves are located. It is probable that conditions after the war may be very similar to those which existed before. Those factors have a direct bearing upon the suggestion regarding the construction and operation of Government plants."

Mr. R. B. Marston, editor of The Publishers' Circular, commenting on this, says: "Peace may come as suddenly as war came, and when she does millions of tons of steamers now carrying war material or laid up in port, thanks to the British Fleet, will be released, and there will probably be such an unloading of paper stocks as the world has never seen."

WANT NO SECURITY FOR BRITISH LOANS

U. S. Bankers Willing To Let Allies Have Advances Unsecured

Chicago, November 3.—The way is being paved for the placing of unsecured loans here on behalf of the Allies.

This was the subject of discussion tonight at a dinner given at the Chicago Club to Henry P. Davison of J. P. Morgan and Co., and Charles H. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

The real purpose of the dinner was to prepare American finance for the plan of lending money to Great Britain, France and their allies without security. Gold importation, acceptances of various forms and the necessity of having Europe retain some American securities were among the topics discussed.

Dr. Davison said the Allies could send over a billion dollars additional gold if need be and that Great Britain had two billion more American values which might be offered as collateral on future accommodations, but neither contingency, he said, was desirable. We already have too much yellow metal for the good of our currency system, he believes.

Danger of Inflation

The visiting bankers advised that there is a grave danger of inflation from further importations and that for a wealthy and powerful country like America it is healthy to have a debt abroad in the form of stocks and bonds owned by foreigners. So it is preferable not to take the last of American values in Great Britain as security for loans.

That these suggestions were regarded as sound suggests that later on unsecured loans will be underwritten here and offered to investors.

The New York bankers additionally buttressed their polite campaign for "straight loans" by suggesting that the wealth of Great Britain and France are such as to put their liabilities beyond question of payment; the war fight continue indefinitely yet would the infinite resources of these countries remain unimpaired. At the same time monetary accommodations to them will be manifoldly beneficial to America.

Britain Not in Need

For one thing; it will sustain the boom here and at the same time be a prime preventive of inflation. The last advance to Great Britain (the $300,000,000 collateral loan just floated) was proposed not by the British government but by American bankers. Great Britain did not need the money—yet. But to American finance it was a necessity in a double sense; it took just so much surplus cash from the plethora and will reduce gold importations in the ratio of the amount of the loan.

So, with the country's leading bankers advocating non-collateral loans to Great Britain and France, t is a foregone conclusion the transaction will be consummated sooner or later.

The bankers spent more than three hours in earnest discussion of the problem.

No Demonstration

As he left the Chicago Club Mr. Davison siad:

The suggestion that England may abandon specie payment and demonetise gold is not worthy of discussion and no such problem confronts us. We did discuss at length the questions of gold importation which are reaching proportions to be of real concern to us.

The country is beginning to feel the effects of new and large credits created here and based upon the gold storage far in excess of our normal supply. It is of greater moment to us that we check this expansion than it is to Great Britain or France that they avoid further metal shipments.

We all realise that a great industrial and commercial structure created upon the foundation of an abnormal gold supply must be unstable. When world conditions are readjusted there must be a counter flow of gold. With its return to Europe the business structure that was erected upon it must fall.

Among those gathered at the conference besides Henry P. Davison of New York, member of the firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., financial agents of Great Britain, France and Russia, were Charles H. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, one of the biggest institutions of its kind in the United States; George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago; S. H. Burnham of Lincoln, Neb; J. B. Forgan, Charles G. Dawes, Arthur Reynold, E. B. Hulbert, F. H. Rawson, L. A. Goddard, Samuel Insull, John A. Lynch, William A. Tilden, R. G. Dunham and J. E. Otis.

"Neither nation is forced to buy war munitions in America," said Mr. Davison, in discussing the prosperity of the United States caused by war orders. "For a time Europe was forced to place their orders in America, but now unless they make favorable terms, England and France will make their own munitions. They are fully equipped to do this.

"I firmly believe the Allies will win. However, no matter what happens, their credit is good for an unlimited amount. And this credit will have to be utilised, because if America expects further business from European nations it means an extension of credit."

M. BRIAND EXALTS FRENCH PRESTIGE

Premier Asserts That the War Has Raised It Higher Than Ever

SEES REMOLDED REPUBLIC

Predicts the Concentration Of Governmental Powers After Victory Has Been Won

Paris, October 17.—How France has regained her prestige as a great power—has, in fact, raised it, in the course of the war, to greater heights than ever—is recounted by Premier Briand in a conversation with Alfred Capus, dramatist and Member of the Academy, in the Figaro. In this conversation, in which he predicted the remolding of French political methods after the war, resulting in a concentration of governmental powers, Premier Briand is quoted as saying:

"I simply ask you to consider what has already been gained and what no hazard of war can take from us. Compare what France and Paris were in July, 1914, with what they are in October, 1916. The truth is that we were not decadent, but that a new generation had sprung up, more sensible, perhaps, to reminders of defeat; more nervous, more impatient, than those which had preceded it. German insolence had contributed a great deal to this state of mind. And as one, nevertheless, dared not to think of war, there resulted a continual conflict between exalted imaginations and humdrum routine politics. It was a kind of moral confusion, which manifested itself by an acute need for distraction, by a violent desire for the new, the unexpected.

France Smarted Under Old Defeats

"No, again, it was not decadence; it was rather anger driven inward—the old insult revived bluntly in the mind by incessant provocation. And then we felt that the world did not appreciate us at our just value, and that irritated and hurt us.

"A nation seen from without has a general aspect to which all its citizens contribute. It is that aspect which a foreigner sees and upon which he forms his opinion. Well, our aspect was not in our favor, and that was because it was not truly ours. It was distorted by an old defeat, and the truth is that the day that defeat was wiped out, when France showed by unheard-of heroism that she meant to throw off the obsession—on that day suddenly all peoples by common agreement recognised their error as regards us, and the prestige of France has become again extraordinary—greater than it has ever been at any epoch.

"In regaining our individuality as a nation we have reconquered at a blow all our influence, all our attraction. That is what we have gained, and nothing can affect it. That is the moral work accomplished in these two years, not to speak of the rest.

"The consequences? Incalculable. They will affect all of us, our advantages as citizens as much as our individual prosperity. They will affect labor, commerce, the arts of luxury.

"The completion of the task, the crowning of it by victory, is well worth taking time and patience over. And if that victory is hard to win, it is precisely on account of its extent and of what must be wrested from the enemy before it can be complete. For much depends upon it—a free existence, prosperity, social reforms, a republic powerful and unchallenged.

See the Doom of Parochialism

"I do not pretend to do more than sketch the main outline. As the result of lessons which it cannot escape, I believe our country will resume instinctively the notion of direct council and authority. There will be this difference, that, while under past regimes this authority was imposed upon it historically and by custom, today it is the country itself which demands it from its elected representatives, as well as a more firm and concentrated direction of its business.

"You understand, I am not speaking for myself; I am thinking of the next group of politicians who will be in power. They are bound to come on the scene with a fresh outlook and less bound by opinions and doctrines, will submit themselves more easily to experience. Our present political methods are not at all damaged by the war. They simply require to be revised, remolded and readapted. I am convinced, for example, that the spirit born of the war is about to clash with the spirit of parochialism, and that it will break it. There will be substituted the notion of public welfare, which has been lost in what one might call the pulverisation of efforts. What will be wanted will be the concentration of effort in the general interest.

"In my opinion the need of tomorrow is to concentrate instead of disperse, and you cannot imagine with what good-will universal suffrage will accept these principles. I believe it is ready to do so now.

"The war has put it in a state of receptivity, and it remains only to speak to it clearly and frankly and to awaken it to a realisation of its own condition."

FALKENHAYN'S PRAISE

(Ostasiatische Lloyd War Service)

Berlin, November 25.—General von Falkenhayn, Commander-in-Chief of the victorious armies operating in Wallachia, expressed his satisfaction to his comrades of the 9th army: "You had to fight for weeks on ice-covered rocky heights, in valleys deeply covered with snow; you had to camp without shelter and without fires; you have often, during many days, been cut off from all communication. But not one of you failed. Wherever the enemy had to be found, he was detained with an iron grip; where he had to be crushed, he was pulverized; where he had to be found, he was hit in the heart."

Presbyterian Synod Urges More Evangelistic Campaigns

Atlantic City, N. J., October 17.—Evangelistic campaigns, with those of the Rev. Billy Sunday as models, were urged as the need of the hour at the ninety-fourth annual convention today of the New Jersey Presbyterian Synod. Delegates reported that the greatest gains in membership in the State were about Trenton and other territories covered by the baseball evangelist. An increase of 8 per cent was shown in New Jersey, 62 per cent of which was made in the places visited by Mr. Sunday.

"Billy Sunday has no monopoly on the Holy Spirit, and there is no reason why the Presbyterian Church should not adopt such endeavors," said Dr. W. H. Vail, Chairman of the Permanent Committee on Christian Life and Work. "We need such men to go out in the field of personal work. There are sixty millions of people in the world today who have yet to be reached. If the same amount of work and systematic preparations for the coming of the Sunday party were adopted and carried through in our individual campaigns, the results would be remarkable."

A home for Presbyterian laymen will be established at Jamesburg, N. J., as the result of the favorable action taken today by the convention here. About $30,000 will be appropriated for the building.

"Mabel's Blunder" A farcical Keystone Comedy.

Not without reason has 'The Diamond from the Sky' been called the most wonderful of all serial films. It did not set the fashion for serial- ; it has done it finitely more; it has set the standard. All present serial films are being judged by that, and future productions must be wonderful indeed to exceed in real heart-interest and intensity of grip the thrall of the thirty instalments of this extraordinary photo-play. Each and all of the chapters are full of 'punch'. surprises leap upon the spectator; he is held in continual suspense as to the next episode, and in no instance can there possibly be disappointment.

President Wilson and Emperor Of Japan Exchange Wireless Notes

Tokio, November 17.—"Hailing the dawn of a new day," President Woodrow Wilson of the United States yesterday signalized the opening of the commercial wireless telegraphic service between the United States and Japan by sending an eloquent message to His Imperial Majesty, the Emperor of Japan.

The new Marconi service was opened Wednesday midnight in Japan and Tuesday midnight in San Francisco and Hawaii. All day yesterday a flood of messages of greetings and goodwill were hurled back and forth through the 5,000-odd miles of atmosphere across the Pacific Ocean, expressing in a way the magnitude and the wonder of this triumph of the mind of man over space and matter. Ambassadors, Editors and business men exchanged felicitations.

The President's message said:

A Voice Across the Silent Spaces

"To His Imperial Majesty, The Emperor of Japan, Tokyo.

"The Government and people of the United States of America send greetings to Your Imperial Majesty and to the people of Japan, and rejoice in this triumph of science which enables the voice of America from the far west to cross the silent spaces of the world and speak to Japan in the far east, hailing the dawn of a new day. May this wonderful event confirm the unbroken friendship of our two nations and give assurance of a never ending interchange of messages of goodwill. May the day soon come when the voice of peace, carried by this silent messenger, shall go into all the world, and its words to the end of the world.

"WOODROW WILSON."

The Reply of His Imperial Majesty

"To the President of the United States, Washington.

"It affords Me much pleasure that the first use of the installation of Wireless Telegraphy between Japan and Hawaii has been to transmit Your cordial message. In return I send this expression of My thanks for the goodwill exhibited towards Me and My people, and of the hearty desire entertained throughout Japan for the continued prosperity and welfare of the United States.

"YOSHIHITO."

Berlin, November 24.—Emperor Francis Joseph's last will has been opened. It contains the following address: "I express thanks to my beloved nations for the faithful love demonstrated to me and my House, in happiness as well as under hardship. The conscience of the faithfulness was comforting to my heart and gave me the strength to fulfil my hard duty as a regent. May they preserve the same patriotic sentiments to my successor.

"I likewise remember my army and navy with feelings of gratitude for their bravery and true devotion. Their victories made me happy and proud, while their undeserved misfortunes caused me bitter and mournful pains. The excellent spirit which always animated my army and navy, as well as both bodies of the territorials, is a proof that my successor may rely upon them no less than I could."

It is reported from Vienna that King Alfonso of Spain is expected there for the funeral.

BRITANNIC MINED?
